

Jan Pfeifer

Jan is business psychologist by training. In 2016 he started as business analyst at Detecon Interational GmbH and is today responsible for training and consulting. His competences are personal management and development, digitalization, future work and organization and HR transformation. He is working for several projects for Telekom and Volkswagen on topics like transformation, new work and future workplaces.