Kweli Rashied-Henry, MPH is the Director of Health Equity for March of Dimes. In this role, she works to strengthen the organization's equity agenda, in addition to supporting the work of the March of Dimes National Prematurity Collaborative Health Equity Workgroup. The Collaborative is a network of over 500 organizations dedicated to achieving demonstrated improvements in equity and preterm birth. Kweli has also served as the East Regional Director for Maternal and Child Health for March of Dimes and as State Coordinator for the March of Dimes North Carolina Preconception Health Campaign. Before moving to North Carolina in 2012, Kweli led two separate initiatives to address health disparities in minority and immigrant communities, one in Brooklyn and the other in New Jersey. Kweli has 20 years of experience in community-based public health, with a focus on policy and management. Kweli graduated with a Bachelor of the Arts from Bennett College, and a Master of Public Health from Emory University. She is a proud mom of four beautiful sons.
