

Rachel Hardin

In her current role as Head of Business Development at Health Decisions, Rachel is focused on partnering with biopharmaceutical companies to develop products that improve health outcomes for women globally. Her background as a business development leader in the biopharmaceutical services industry has earned her a successful track record delivering business-critical growth, building productive relationships with client teams and designing effective corporate communications campaigns.

Rachel is a graduate of Leadership Raleigh through the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce. She holds a BA in Political Science and Journalism from UNC Chapel Hill and is currently earning her Master of Public Health and Leadership from UNC Chapel Hill.