

Sep 2021

Hemanth Bio

Hemanth is a global brand lead in an emerging biotech leading commercialization of its first-ever drug. Hemanth leads a team of marketing directors to build a product and service profile, and develop the market to be receptive to diagnosing and treating an ultra-rare disease. In parallel, he has also prepared the company for its first launch by setting up teams and processes to manage program decision-making and implications on product profile, as it steps through clinical trials and the FDA approval process.

Hemanth has amassed a unique set of insights working with the C-suite to establish the commercial function. Small biotech or established? Pre-commercial or commercial? Hemanth has faced and answered these career decisions, making the leap from large pharma to an emerging biotech. He doesn't intend to go back.

Hemanth has an MBA from Kellogg, spent a decade in rare diseases and two in healthcare. His passions are long-distance running, hiking the Presidentials or the Santa Cruz mountains, and writing.